Excerpt from The Unwanted (Mentor)	Altered Excerpt (Nonexemplar)
At the time of this writing, the Syrian refugee crisis has sparked a backlash against immigration of all kinds and upended politics across the globe. As a result, the British have decided to exit the European Union. German leader Angela Merkel suffered election setbacks. Hungarian leader Viktor Orban expanded power via his nativist views. Donald Trump became the president of the United States. Turkey and Greece accepted international agreements to slow the flood of refugees into Western Europe, freezing in place millions of people in refugee camps and facilities for the foreseeable future.	At the time of this writing, the refugee situation in Syria has caused problems around the world and changed things going on in countries everywhere. Some countries have made new choices because of it, and some leaders have had challenges. Other countries have tried to manage the number of refugees coming in, and many people are stuck in camps or places for a long time.
