Read the following modified excerpt from page 92 of Solimar and correct any inappropriate shifts in verb tense throughout:

"At the edge of the woods, Doña Flor stopped and pointed downhill. 'Hike to the river, then downstream to a hut. You can't miss it. The canoe was inside. Launch from there. The river will be calm for most of the day, but later this afternoon it is running swift. When the current brings you to a great pool as flat as a spacious lake, you must paddle with all your might to the left bank to avoid the first waterfall.'"
